OPENING OF THE CAMPAIGN

The Democrats Observe the Event on th Birth Anniversary of Hendricks.

It Is Done Under the Auspices of the Club Bearing His Name and Without Campbell's Presence-General Black's Speech.

The Democratic State campaign was fermally opened last night at Tombinson Hall, the Hendricks Club having the gratification of sounding the inaugural warwhoop through the medium of a celebration of the dead Vice-president's seventy-first birthday. The flag decorations used at the recent Democratic convention had been left in place and were utilized again last night, with the addition of a bronze bust of Hendricks and a very pretty effect in red, white and blue gas globes forming the words "The Hendricks Club." This was erected over the stage in letters three feet high, and was greatly admired. The club managed to present one of its promised attractions-ex-Pension Commissioner Black. Governor Campbell, of Ohio, wrote that illness rendered his attendance impossible. This was a disappointment, though what Ohio's executive would have done for time, in view of the generous slice absorbed by General Black, is a question. The gentleman from Illinois talked until empty chairs were far more numerous than auditors, and, as consequence, the lesser lights who had prepared themselves for a flourish of oratory were compelled to forego their pleaspre for lack of anyone to listen to them. The meeting, which opened with fair promise, flattened out for the reason that it was drawn out too long. It was half an hour late in starting, and the people were weary before General Black had half completed his speech, which was devoted to attacking the tariff and the force bill

The Gray and Cleveland clubs acted as an escort to the Hendrick's Club, and the arrival of these organizations, headed by the Myers and Deery band, was greeted by applause from the people who had already gathered at the hall. The band entertained the crowd with a medley during the inevitable delay in getting the meeting under way, and finally at 8:30 o'clock, when probably 2,000 people had assembled. Sterling Holt, president of the Hendricks Club. rapped the meeting to order, and after announcing the object of the gathering, introduced J. E. McCullough as chairman. Mr. McCullough was warmly received, and after the effusiveness of his welcome had worn away sufficiently to permit of his being heard, he remarked that the meeting opened the campaign of 1890 as well as com-memorated Hendricks's birthday. The latter's name, he said would be always cherished, honored and revered as one admired for his great abilities, loved for the qualities of his great heart, devoted to the insti-tutions of his State and country and ever solicitous for the welfare of his country-men." Mr. McCullough concluded by introducing General Black. GENERAL BLACK'S SPEECH.

"I never come," said General Black, in commencing his speech, "to take part with the Democrats of the State of Indiana in their campaigns without feeling in a certain sense like one returning to the home of his youth. The great community of which I am a representative is separated from you only by legal and invisible lines. My mother was born here, my father educated in the same institution graduated Hendricks. My own collegiate life was passed in shadow of Wabash College and the first hostile gnn I ever heard was when standing under the flag of the Union and of Indiana. As I responded then to the call of my country so I respond now to the call of the Indiana Democracy. The man whose name this night receives your reverence was a tribune of the people, an oracle of Democracy, and, while he has passed away, Indiana still possesses the fruits of his good works. If his white piume is laid away, still upon the brows of the stately Voorhees and the glorious Turpie wave white plumes." [Applause.]
After this brief eulogy of Governor Hendricks, General Black proceeded to wade into the Republican party for maintaining the tariff, and as he progressed he compared Indiana to Massachusetts, and declared the tariff was responsible for fact that the latter was much richer than the Hoosier State. Among other things, General Black said: "Your State debt has been doubled in the past ten years, and farm mortgages vastly increased. The tariff is responsible for it. The manufacturing interests profit at the expense of the agricultural classes. What produces the unnatural effect that he who digs wealth from the soil should turn it over to him who handles it? The tariff. year is that the tariff laws must be changed that the citizen producing wealth shall be allowed to hold a fair share of what he pro-

The General turned from the farmer to the laboring man, and assured the members of the latter class who might be within sound of his voice that there was nothing in the Democratic policy antagonistic to the laboring classes. He cited low wages, the necessity of organization and occasionally of strikes as proof positive that the tariff which piled up wealth for the manufacturer operated disastrously to the workingman. The ex-Pension Commissioner then invited the audience to put its ear to the ground in order that the tramp of the Farmers' Alliance, marching to the support of the De-mocracy, might be heard. He regretted that Governor Campbell was not there to tell why it is that Ohio has dropped off $80,000,000 during the past ten years in farm land valuations. He urged that there should be such a modification of the revenue system as will "shear away the margin of capital and give the farmers a fair

After a violent attack on the Mc-Kinley bill, he paused, and his auditors, who had become so greatly reduced in num-bers as to make the big hall look somewhat lonesome, expectantly awaited the grand finale, but it came not. The General merey paused for breath, and when he launched into a denunciation of the force bill, large delegations slipped from the hall, pretty well worn out, for it was a warm night and a little politics went good ways. After devoting twenty mintues to an assault upon the bill which is so repugnant to the Democracy because it provides for honest elections, General Black closed by stating that in these two issues, viz., the tariff and the force bill, lay the power that can overthrow the Republican

Following General Black's address, Captain McCabe, whom Green Smith defeated. and Captain Hilligoss swore allegiance to the Democratic party, forgave their enemies and talked the andience out of the hall, adjournment occurring about 10:30 o'clock.

NEAR TO HIS AMBITION. Hendricks Defeated Twenty-Two Years Ago

by Voorhees and Fitch.

Mr. Hendricks came nearer being nominated for President in 1868 than he ever did afterwards, But few even of those who took part in that celebrated convention knew how near he was to the prize, and a still smaller number know how he was defeated. Judge Niblack, who, during his whole life, was the intimate and confidential friend of the late Vice-president, thus tells the story of that convention: "In 1863 we could have nominated Hendricks at New York had it not been for a foolish blunder of Voornees and Fitch. Hendricks was not openly a candidate. C. W. Woolley and others of Ohio had come over into this State and secured a sort of instruction for Pendleton. None of us liked it, but we were disposed to obey the instructions so long as there were any prospects for Pendieton. We really thought he was too light weight for the place. Voorhees first started off on the Chase track, but soon went over to the Hancock side, expecting to be made the choice for Vice-president. He was just then out of | behave themselves.

believe Pendleten could be nominated were in favor of running Hendricks, and we held frequent consultations. We did not held frequent consultations. We did not let Voorhees know what was going on. Mr. Hendricks was willing to be a candidate, but did not wish, under the circumstances, to put himself in an attitude of opposition to Mr. Pendleton, who had received the indorsement of Indiana. It was finally agreed we should vote for Mr. Pendleton as long as there was a show for his nomination, and then Mr. Hendricks was to be tion, and then Mr. Hendricks was to be brought forward. I was to be the one to decide when the proper time to spring Mr. Hendricks had come. Of course, all this was kept from Mr. Voorhees. When we arrived at New York we found the delegation from that State divided, but all were ostile to Mr. Pendleton. They were willing to vote for Mr. Hendricks, and we thought we saw our way clear to nominate him. The situation of Mr. Hendricks and his attitude toward Mr.
Pendleton were fully explained to them, and it was agreed the New York delegation should cast their vote for Governor Church until the time came for rallying on Mr. Hendricks. The agreement was carried out, and the balloting began. It proceeded smoothly enough until the end of the fourth ballot. I was sitting some little way off from the Indiana delegation, when I was surprised to see them get up and move out of the ball for consultation. I followed and asked what it meant, when I was informed that Voorhees and Fitch had demanded a consultation. I remonstrated with them, but it did no good. It was finally agreed that I should return and cast the vote of the State for Pendleton until an agreement was reached. I did so cast it on the fifth and sixth ballots. but the Pendleton men at once jumped to the conclusion that the retiring of the Indiana delegation meant treachery to their chief, and they were ready for a struggle to get even for such treachery. Finally the name of Hendricks was brought forward, and New York voted for him. He rapidly forged shead of all others, and would have been nominated on the last ballot had not Vallandingham got up and sprung the name of Seymour. The stroke was to repay Indiana for what they considered her treachery to Pendleton, It was a fatal stroke. Had not Voorhees and Fitch foolishly called out the delegation for consultation, thus giving the appearance of intending treachery, we would have readily nominated our man. Ohio has never fully forgiven us for that, and we could never afterwards get them to give us their solid vote for Mr. Hendricks in any convention.

> Delinquents to the General Fund Castigated in Words More Forcible than Polite-A Preacher's Charges Against an Editor.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—There was a lively time at last evening's session of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church Conference. The church steward complained bitterly that many ministers were not turning a proper amount into the general fund, "although they don't fail to collect their own salaries." He named three pastors, and an uproar followed. After much talk Presiding Bishop Lomax took the floor, and scored the delinquents. He added: "Unless you all collect and pay in your proportion to the general fund you will compel me to leave some of you at home, and get younger men who, perhaps, cannot preach as well, to take your places. The difficulty with colored ministers is that they too often preach about what they do not understand. They take somebody's book and write from it a long sermon, and they stand up and read firstly, thirdly and twenty-sec-ondly [laughter and shouts of 'That's it], and finally your long-winded sermon blows out of the window, your congregation is asleep, there is no interest in the church, and you collect no money. You should not borrow long-winded classical sermons; leave that to the high-toned white ministers. Preach something that you understand, and you will have no difficulty in having good congregations who will pay liberally to the church. But you think it is all right so long as you find somebody to sit up and say 'amen,' even if they do not understand what you are say-ing, and you do not understand it yourself. If you cannot manage your churches you should go at something else. Get a young mule and go to plowing." [Voice, "Now you are talking," and uproarous laughter.] Several ministers wished to reply, but Bishop Lomax declared the conference adjourned until to-day.

When the conference convened this morning Rev. Samuel Sherman, of Alabama, introduced a resolution to the effect that the conference take up subscriptions to the Star of Zion, the church organ printed at Salisbury, N. C. This brought up a general discussion, during which a select committee to which the matter had been referred for the third time, reported that the conference would recognize that paper as its official organ so soon as the existing abuses should be corrected-such as refusing to print articles forwarded from the various churches, not mailing the paper regularly to subscribers and cease its editorials in denunciation of the conference.

Rev. W. H. Smith said he had sent articles to the paper which he presumed had been thrown into the waste-basket. " sent money to pay for their publication," said the speaker, "and the money was not returned when the articles were rejected. admit that I wrote on both sides of the sheets, but that did not prevent editor Dorsay from returning the money. The resolution was rejected, together with the report, and the Star of Zion is no longer recognized by the Kentucky Conference. Passing the character of the ministers was the next business in order. The Rev. Burrell Mitchell, of Owensburg, Ky., reported no general fund, and that his salary was only $54. "How do you live?" asked the Bishop. just have to hustle," replied Rev.

The Bishop-Did you have any entertainments or run excursions? Rev. Mitchell-Oh, yes, beloved bishop. "Then you should have brought up a general fund and divided the spoils," replied the Bishop. In answer to the conference steward's question it was learned that a rival church ad taken all of brother Mitchell's members, and that the church had grown poorer and poorer.

Bishop Lomax then proceeded to castigate the brethren as follows: "There are too many of you coming up here without any general fund. There are some I am going to put out. [Cries of 'amen.'] Rather than come here with excuses you should not come at all. About the best thing I can do and west of the Mississippi river will pass into the control of the Canadian Pacific in order to save you all from public expos ure is to pass all characters, turn you all oose and adjust the matter in the appoint ments. The law says no minister shall have an appointment who does not comply with the law, and you have not done so Cries of 'Mercy, hear that now.' If you are going to be ministers, be ministers. Cries of 'That's so.' There seems to be something 'rotten in Denmark." ["Hear, hear," said the brethren.]

Rev. Mr. Mitchell's character was passed and the conference took a recess. Upon reassembling the character of the Rev. W. A. Foreman, of Louisville, whose church blew down in the cyclone last March was again placed on the rack. After considerable discussion, in which Church Steward Johnson scored the delinquent for not paying his general fund tax, his characte was passed by W. H. Lawson giving his personal note for the shortage. Adjourned antil Monday.

Proposed Swedish Theological University. GALESBURG, Ill., Sept. 6.-The vital question before the National Swedish Mission Union is whether it shall found a university of its own or continue to educate its young men in the Swedish department of the Chicago Theological Seminary. Thirtynine of its young men are now taking the course in this department, and twelve graduated from it this year. The discussion showed the sentiment about evenly divided. Rev. C. A. Bjork, president of the union, was authorized to travel the whole year through this country in the interests of the denominations. Rev. J. A. Hult-man and the Rev. F. M. Johnson, were chosen to evangelistic work. The reports show the mission churches generally to be in a flourishing condition.

The Value of Advertisements.

Joseph F. Welch, who was indicted for Boston Herald. The newspaper without any advertise. ments, which Mrs. Julia Ward Howe wants to see, might suit the tastes of some people. but it would be without a very interesting feature. The idea that the advertisements in a newspaper only please the countingroom unfortunately obtains in some quarters, but to the great mass of the people they are not only interesting, but useful and instructive reading. They are the shoppers' vade mecum, the business man's guide, and everybody's instructor. A passed requiring all such work to be done by day. The Mayor and chief of police newspaper without advertising columns would fail to accomplish its mission. Besides, it would be about as poor as Job's turkey.

She Can Do It.

Nobody cares whether the inhabitants of Jupiter are transparent or not, as some of the star-gazers affirm; but it would be something of a godsend in the way of wisdom to understand by what process of vision a woman can see clear through a man weighing 240 pounds with as much comprehension as she can look into a plate-glass window full of new bonnets.

Wesson, Miss., August 31, 1889. For twenty-one years I had WOMB trouble and have doctored without results. This condition being aggravated by not being stayed in its prog-ress had so complicated the state of my general health up to last June that I was afflicted with Dyspepsia, Constipation, Female weakness and General Debility as a result, and in this condi-tion I presented my case in writing to the Gun Wa Chinese Herb Remedy Co. Receiving a courteous reply and promise of benefit only, the charges being within my means, I thought to experiment with their treatment. Three months of continuous and faithful treatment, and

Sr. Louis, Mo., August 29, 1890 Gun Wa Chinese Herb Remedy Co.: Gentleman-I owe you a house and lot for what you and your medicine have done for me. For three years I have been on the decline with consumption and taken all kinds of medicin without being successful. I could not sleep, had night sweats, could not swallow, with pains in my lungs, back and kidneys; considering my-self as good as dead. Have used your Remedies. now for one month and am as free from pain as ever and am satisfied my consumption is rapidly being cured. I am very thankful for what you have done for me, and if useful to you for the benefit of my fellow-sufferers I subscribe my name with full consent to publish same GEORGE STANLEY.

70 Years Old and Recovering. A VOICE NEARER HOME

"A Practical Test." My aunt has been using the Gun Wa Co.'s Remedies for the past six weeks, and with great success in benefit. Mrs. Julia A. Hill, the aunt written of, has suffered very much with the Heart Disease, and we have momentarily expected her death. We have tried all the medication obtainable with failure, and was about hope-less until heard of the Gun Wa Co., and under the influence of some invisible power I came to your parlors, and am thankful I did, for ever since she has been using the Remedies they not only effectively warded off the usual attack, but her general health is much improved as well. I feel now, after this PRACTICAL TEST of the Remedies, that I can conscientiously recommend them, and herewith do so.
